Switzerland comes to Harrods

What do Harrods and Switzerland have in common? Both stand for quality, so they are a perfect match for a month-long promotion of all that is best about Switzerland. Harrods' discerning customers will appreciate what is being showcased: Switzerland's high-quality food, grown and produced in pristine environments; its long tradition of hospitality – especially to British visitors; its unsurpassed public transport system – the only way to reach many of the country's most beautiful mountain landscapes; its world-class spas with many different types of treatment; and watches that have become legendary for their precision and design quality.

Bright red Swiss flags will give Harrods a new take on painting the town red, enlivening window and floor displays. The 20 windows on Brompton Road will have some surprises and cover the themes of summer sports, Swiss cities, gastronomy, watchmaking, artisan crafts, a Swiss model railway and the scenic delights of the Glacier Express

Three of the windows will be interactive, one of them featuring the famous 'Switzerball' created by English artist Charles Morgan – a wall of invention and movement that encapsulates a country and entralls spectators of all ages.

During the launch weekend of 31 March – 3 April a wooden chalet in Hans Crescent will offer samples of cheese, chocolate and Jura coffee to the sound of Swiss music. These and other foods will be available in the Food Hall throughout the promotion and used in the restaurants to produce Swiss snacks and dishes.

Also during the launch weekend, visitors to Harrods will be handed discount vouchers for the Food Hall, flyers for a competition to win a luxury holiday in Switzerland, and partners' brochures.

Marcelline Kuonen, director of Switzerland Tourism said that people tend to think of Switzerland as a winter destination, so one of the aims of the promotion is to encourage people to think of Switzerland as a summer destination and encourage visits to cities as well. Alpine trips are so different in summer.

A 1/4 million print-run of a Harrods mini-magazine will feature 44 pages of editorial and advertorial, to be distributed instore, sent to Harrods cardholders and inserted in The Times and Daily Telegraph on the first weekend in April.

After Easter, Harrods windows will be changed for the Royal Wedding, so it will be well worthwhile making two trips to see both displays.

Shock at closure of Consulate General

The Swiss Confederation is adapting its representation in Scotland as part of a global strategy that focuses on a number of activities in new emerging markets. Consul General Reto Renggli will return to Switzerland at the end of April after four years, bequeathing a strong legacy of Scottish-Swiss dialogue in the fields of politics, science, education and culture. He will be replaced by a new Honorary Consul General who will be named in due course. The Embassy of Switzerland in the UK remains committed to a strong and active presence in Scotland, to consolidating the excellent cooperation with the Scottish Government and ensuring high visibility of Swiss culture, expertise and innovation.

Freddie Wyser, President of FOSSUK says: "You may already be aware of the sad news regarding the closure of the Consulate General of Switzerland in Edinburgh.

This will take place on 31 March 2011.

I am sure I can speak for all in expressing our dismay and utter total amazement at the decision by the Authorities in Berne. The reason given is that they felt it would be more productive to open Consulates in emerging countries such as China and India. It is a sad day as our Consulate has only been open since 2006. As we all know, the work undertaken by both Bruno Widrig and Reto Renggli with regard to having representation in Scotland was immense not only in promoting Swiss interest but also cultural exchanges between the two countries."

"An Honorary Consul will be appointed in the near future. The name has not been announced yet but I am sure we, the Swiss Club here in Edinburgh as other Swiss living in Scotland will welcome him/her graciously."

New editor for the regional pages

The FOSSUK Committee is very pleased to inform you that Andrew Littlejohn has been appointed as the new Editor for the Review's Regional Pages.

Andrew is a freelance journalist with many years experience working for the BBC, swissinfo.ch and Austria's national broadcaster, ORF. His background is in 'live' radio production, presenting and feature-making. In Austria, Andrew was responsible for the output of children's and youth programmes, before moving into magazine and news production.

During his time at the BBC, he produced many of Radio 4's flagship programmes and worked extensively on the network's daily and weekly output. Andrew contributes audio and print reports on a regular basis for the English department of swissinfo.ch, an entity of the Swiss Public Broadcasting Corporation.

Training and development have always played a central role throughout Andrew's career. He has spent time in Kathmandu training groups of radio producers and presenters to conduct live phone-in talk shows focusing on Nepal's peace and political reform process.

He also teamed up with young journalists from developing nations to report from the UN Climate Change Conference in Poznan, Poland. Working for the NGO Panos London, which promotes media projects for marginalized communities, he has worked closely with reporters in Africa and South-east Asia to help raise their level of feature-making skills.

With his wide-ranging and colourful background, Andrew seems best equipped to create lively and exciting regional pages for the Swiss Review here in the UK. We hope his enthusiasm and fresh approach will catch on and motivate our readers to participate and enter into dialogue with him. Look out for the June issue of the Swiss Review!

The Deputy First Minister, Ieuan Wyn Jones, who is also the Minister for Economy and Transport, welcomed Helvetic Airways' CEO Bruno Jans, as well as Anton Thalmann, the Ambassador of Switzerland to the United Kingdom, at the Pierhead Building in Cardiff Bay for a reception commemorating the launch of a new air route between Cardiff to Zurich, as well as recognising the unique relationship between the two nations.

Mr Jones said: "I am extremely pleased to have welcomed representatives from Helvetic Airways who will soon be providing a new and exciting service from Zurich to Cardiff Airport and look forward to welcoming many new tourists and businesses to our shores each year.

"We have worked hard in recent years to create a strong bond between our two nations and with many Swiss companies already established here, today's coming together can surely only enhance our relationship further."

Bruno Jans, CEO of Helvetic Airways AG, said:

"We are proud to announce the direct air link between Zurich to Cardiff. We hope this will allow the Swiss holidaymaker to discover Wales and to offer a convenient connection for Welsh and Swiss business travellers.

"We are looking forward to welcoming Welsh customers to show them the high Swiss standard, comfort and quality of the service on board of our aircraft."

H.E. Mr Anton Thalmann, Ambassador of Switzerland in the United Kingdom, said: "I am very pleased to be here today to celebrate a further strengthening of the ties between Switzerland and Wales. The new direct connection between Cardiff and Zurich will no doubt deepen the commercial, cultural and social exchange between Swiss and Welsh citizens and I wish Helvetic Airways every success in this new endeavour."

Patrick Duffy, managing director of Cardiff Airport, said: "We are extremely pleased to be welcoming Helvetic representatives to Wales for this event, and are looking forward for the start of the route.

"The new route will offer customers a quick and convenient way to access one of Europe's most attractive destinations, and research conducted by the airport and the airline demonstrated that Zurich is one of the most sought after business destinations from Wales. We're hoping the new route will be a success with outbound Welsh travellers, as well as with inbound Swiss passengers visiting the country for leisure or business purposes."

From 30 March this year, passengers will be able to fly direct from Cardiff to Zurich four days a week. Flights will operate from Cardiff on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Fridays.

It will be the first time during the airport's history that it has operated a direct route to Zurich. It will be a unique service to attract travellers to and from Wales as well as south western England.

Zurich is far more than a banking capital, and is a top class holiday destination with fantastic links to the Alps and lakes of northern Italy.

Helvetic Airways will offer flights from £99 one way, including all taxes and charges for a limited period. Tickets can be purchased online at www.helvetic.com.

Also see their website for a great introductory offer of a free flight.

Isabelle de Montet: The sky's the limit

"Aviation has always been a great passion of mine" said Isabelle de Montet, the daughter of Rolette de Montet-Guerin, who lives in Cardiff, when Ruth Thomas-Lehmann asked her what got her interested in becoming a pilot. "It was sparked by her father's love for flying and by his achievements as a fighter pilot in the RAF."

Isabelle joined the Air Training Corps and at the age of 13 the RAF awarded Isabelle both the Sixth Form College and Flying Scholarships in 1998 so that she could complete her Private Pilot's Licence at the age of 17. Her career, however, took a very different turn when she was refused by the RAF in 1999 on the grounds that her arms were 5mm too short for service.

While this was devastating for her, she wasted no time and immediately applied for the British Airways sponsored pilot training scheme. She was accepted and began her training in Michigan, USA in January 2000.

Isabelle started her training with flying Cessnas 172 and ended up flying Boeings 757 and 767 for British Airways. At the young age of 24 she became an instructor.

But Isabelle still had higher goals. She wanted to be part of the huge advancements being made in the development of civilian airliners, as well as military aircraft. Despite not being in the flight test industry and having no company sponsorship, she was able to successfully complete a Fixed Wing Flight Test Diploma Course at the Empire Test Pilot School, MoD Boscombe Down as the first private, self sponsored pilot to graduate.

Since November 2010, FR Aviation/Cobham, employs Isabelle in a multi role post: as a training captain and examiner on the Dassault Falcon 20, but also as a Category 2 test pilot. This year Isabelle will be 30 years old and although she has already achieved a great deal, she already has another goal: "I would ideally like to work for an aircraft manufacturer in their flight test department. This should be possible in the not too distant future."

Eduard's farewell at Mansion House Concert

For the third year, a concert aimed to provide a platform for Swiss, German or Austrian musicians, living or studying in Cardiff was held at the Mansion House in Cardiff. It was attended by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of Cardiff and Eduard Krall, is visiting Wales for the last time before leaving London after four years at the Swiss Embassy.

The concert is organised by the Swiss Consulate in Cardiff in association with the Cardiff Swiss and the German Society in Cardiff.

Geneva born Rolette de Montet-Guerin, a former violinist at the Welsh National Opera, played works by Handel, Hindemann and Mozart. Rolette will be accompanied by Welsh pianist, Simon Shewring.

The Lord Mayor sponsored the venue and raised £500 for his chosen charity which is LATCH Wales, a charity which cares for children with cancer.

SkyWork's expansion plans strengthen Bern links

Notwithstanding statements elsewhere, the summer charter was completed successfully.

SkyWork realised 100% of all announced flights in 2010. Despite some minor technical problems, all of SkyWork's passengers arrived at their destinations safely and without incurring additional costs.

Last year, SkyWork carried a total of 28,312 passengers, of whom 3% were affected by delays due to acts of God, e.g. technical issues or the Icelandic ash cloud.

CEO, Tomislav Lang comments: "The expansion and reinforcement of our fleet in spring 2011 will usher in the future we promised together with Bern Airport. As a result we will be able to increase the flights we offer from Bern by more than 70%, compared to 2010.

The fleet expansion in April this year will guarantee both our new and old partners, and our passengers, an even greater level of reliability than in 2010."

SkyWork will continue with expansion despite competition so extending the route network and the existing flights schedule will strengthen Bern's links with the major European cities, creating more convenient travel options for passengers from Switzerland and, in particular, our loyal Bern customers.

Previously, to get to Great Britain's capital city you had to fly from one of the other Swiss airports – now in response to our customers' demands we are introducing the summer flight plan for 2011. As of March 27, our passengers can avail of the new connection to London City Airport six times a week. This unique offer will attract both city break travellers and business travellers alike.

London is the first new destination that SkyWork is offering for this coming summer.

Jonas Foundation project: Music in a special school

The Jonas Foundation project is based in a residential special school for children with social, emotional and behavioural difficulties in Kent, south of London.

Children come to this school when it has not been possible for them to continue in mainstream schooling. In most cases they have been excluded because of violent or disruptive behaviour, and some pupils have been excluded from several schools in succession. But no children are sent here against their will – this is not a young offenders' institution. In fact they all seem relieved to come back to school after a holiday spent at their home or foster home – this is not a place to ask, "Did you have a good holiday?"

Here Christine Sigwart-Sartorius tells of the origins of the Jonas Foundation:

"In the nineties, a bunch of children started singing at the French Protestant Church London accompanying church services and celebrations with their music. It did not take long before they were called "Les Rossignols de Soho".

The lively songs and little musicals brought the Rossignols de Soho to various parts of to Germany, Switzerland and Sweden.

As the years passed and the number of children was growing, instrumental music has been introduced, as well.

What had started as a youth club, bringing children from expatriate families together with Inner City children, developed a few years later into a Music School, the Swiss Church Music School, at the Swiss Church London.

About 40 youngsters could learn an instrument but singing and performing musicals was still at the heart of the School.

The Swiss Community has been very supportive. Who had not been wondering about the radiant, happy faces, singing at the Swiss Church under the beautiful Bible verse "Je ne mettrai point dehors celui qui vient a moi".

Bridging youngsters from different origins and backgrounds, offering an opportunity to share, perform and laugh together is only one aspect of the School.

In the course of a solid music education, building up a discipline, learning to work together towards a goal: the concerts and tours; gaining in self-esteem as progress becomes evident, are just as important.

In 2003, a Swiss Charity was created, the Jonas Foundation, opening opportunities to more children around the world.

While the activities take up different forms: Music with youngsters in a secured institution (England), Art for Integration with handicapped children, (Armenia and Switzerland), Drama as a means towards non-violence (Ramallah) and many more, the object remains the same – to work towards peace by bringing youngsters together, whatever their origin, religion, or socio-economic background.

Although Christian in orientation, the activities of the foundation are open to children of any religion.

Switzerland leads Europe in rankings

Switzerland is the most innovative country in Europe, outstripping all members of the European Union, according to a new survey carried out by the EU's own Innovation Union Scoreboard.

The IUS describes Switzerland as Europe's "overall innovation leader" with an exceptional performance in intellectual property assets and a broad range of economic effects indicators. Switzerland's growth performance in innovation is also above the EU rate, at 3.8% over the past five years, the IUS said.

The IUS surveys innovation rates in all 27 EU member states along with Croatia, Iceland, the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Norway, Serbia, Switzerland and Turkey.

Sophie Hunger is coming to London

Swiss folk-blues-pop singer and rising star Sophie Hunger returns to London to promote her new album "1983".

Sophie's new album moves away from purely acoustic tracks and enigmatic lyrics in favour of more forceful delivery.

She sings in Swiss German, German, French and English, holding her own no matter which language she expresses herself in.

Sophie Hunger was born in 1983 in Berne and spent a large part of her childhood in London and Bonn.

Jeffrey Long bids a fond farewell after 23 wonderful years

The sad death of our editor, Derek Meakin and the appointment of a successor marks the end of an era.

The close knit team of Derek, Erika Farwell (Meier) and myself worked successfully together to make sure that the UK pages of the Swiss Review were produced on time and were self financing. What readers may not be aware is that the UK production costs have had to be funded in the UK and these are met by advertising revenue.

It was in 1988 when I was asked if I would take on the responsibility of the UK Pages and ensure they were produced on time and now on my retirement after 23 years I recall a few changes.

In the early days the 'Review' was less colourful, fewer pages 20 compared with 32 today, not quite so big, 25mm shorter. Lisa Hall-Zeller was editor followed by Nick Miller, Dr. David Ditchburn, Aileen Foletti and finally Derek Meakin with me filling in for these last two issues. Everyone contributed their own style and expertise. The UK pages were green until issue 2/1992 when they reverted to white and the 'Review' was slightly enlarged to A4 size.

For some years Switzerland Tourism provided a treasurer, last one being Roland Minder, followed by Valeria Ossola and Erika Farwell for the last 12 years.

In 1995 an appeal had to be made in the in the UK pages because there was insufficient income to fund future editions. Fortunately donations and help from the Service of the Swiss Abroad saved the day.

When we needed a new advertising manager there were no volunteers so I took on the additional responsibility and have generated sufficient income ever since.

I would like to thank everyone I've worked with over the years, individuals, committees and last but certainly not least – the advertisers.

It's been a wonderful, worthwhile and eye opening experience. God bless you all.

Finally I'd like to express my grateful thanks to Julian Marshall from Adroit Designs & Print for all his efforts over the years in designing the supplement pages. Julian had worked with Derek Meakin for many years and was one of the original designers of the magazine Swiss Observer back in the late 70's.

Please give the new editor, Andrew Littlejohn all the support you can.

Swiss Business reception was a winner

The festively decorated Swiss Embassy in London was the setting for this year's Christmas Reception hosted for the sixth time running by the Swiss Business Hub UK in cooperation with the London Chapter of the British-Swiss Chamber of Commerce.

More than 160 guests braved the bitter cold on the evening of 6 December 2010 to attend the event, making it the best attended Christmas reception to date.

The guests consisted of other London-based trade & investment promotion professionals as well as representatives of Swiss companies, UK public sector contacts and intermediaries from British firms. Also the event was used as a Pool of Experts Get-Together and a dozen members of the Pool of Experts attended.

Mr Anton Thalmann, the Swiss Ambassador, opened proceedings with an entertaining speech welcoming everyone to the Embassy. He also thanked Gregor Koncilja of Swiss International Air Lines for his hard work over the past year as Chairman of the London Chapter of the BSCC.

Thorsten Terweiden, Head of the Swiss Business Hub UK, also delivered a speech, in which he gave an overview of the past activities of the Swiss Business Hub UK. Moreover he provided an outlook on the projects for the year ahead. He also explained that one of the main aims for 2011 will be to trigger exports from Swiss companies active in the cleantech sector by developing activities together with the export platform Cleantech.

Artemisia Distribution SARRL, the makers of La Clandestine Absinthe, added an edgy air to the evening with their special cocktails, the perfect complement to the delicious canapés organised by the Swiss Business Hub. This year's prize draw included six bottles of wine offered by Julius Bär – who also generously sponsored the evening – and two return tickets to Switzerland provided by Swiss International Air Lines Ltd, and the lucky winners left with some welcome Christmas presents.

As usual, the guests enjoyed the warm atmosphere and took advantage of the excellent opportunity to network and make new contacts in a relaxed and festive environment.

Thorsten Terweiden, Head of SBH UK states that the Swiss Business Hub UK means business.

The UK market offers great opportunities for Swiss companies with its innovative, high quality and highly competitive products as well as services. Researching those opportunities and identifying potential partners can be time consuming and costly. This is where the Swiss Business Hub UK can assist Swiss SMEs. We possess a large network of external partners and have got extensive knowledge of different industry sectors. The Hub can provide cost-effective solutions and is able to offer an immediate service. Our work was recognised by many different Swiss SMEs over the years and the work of the Hub has contributed to their successes.

Glaziers Hall chosen for Swiss Olympic presence

The public face of Switzerland at the 2012 Olympic Games in London will be Glaziers Hall, an historic venue in the heart of the City directly by the River Thames. Glaziers Hall is an established London venue in an accessible location, and its excellent transport links make it an ideal base for the Swiss Olympic presence. Its proximity to the popular Borough Market should entice additional visitors to take a stroll around the House of Switzerland.

In addition to Glaziers Hall, the neighbouring "Mug House" bar and Southwark Cathedral's Millennium Courtyard space and public restaurant 'The Refectory' will also form an integral part of the House of Switzerland. The total space offers a number of versatile and flexible sites for exhibitions, conferences, a VIP lounge, restaurant and bar, working spaces for media and lounge areas for athletes as well as fans. An outside public area will be used for cultural events, performances and medal ceremonies of Swiss athletes.
